

Notes on Contributors

Laura Chrisman received her D Phil in English from the University of Oxford in 1992. She was Associate Professor of African American and African Studies at The Ohio State University. During 2001-2002 she was Research Fellow at Stanford Center of the Humanities. Currently, she is at the University of York, UK. Her most recent books are: Rereading the Imperial Romance: British Imperialism and South African Resistance in Haggard, Schreiner and Plaatje (Oxford University Press, 2000) and, with Benita Parry, Essays and Studies 1999: Postcolonial Theory and Criticism (D S Brewer, 2000). She recently guest-edited a special issue of New Formations on “‘The Rendez-Vous of Conquest’: Rethinking Race and Nation” (number 45, autumn 2001), and with Farah Griffin and Tukupfu Zuberi recently guest-edited a special issue of The Black Scholar on “Transcending Traditions: Afro-American, African Diaspora and African Studies” (volume 30, numbers 3/4, winter 2000).

E-mail rootbeerlc@yahoo.com

Paul Hibbeln has BAs in History and Economics from New College of the University of South Florida and an MA in Economics from Northwestern University. Currently a doctoral candidate in History at Ohio State University, he is completing his dissertation “France, Britain, and the League of Nations Mandates System in Africa, 1920-1939.”

E-mail hibbeln.1@osu.edu

Elizabeth MacLean is Professor of History at Otterbein College, where she has been teaching since 1986. Joseph E. Davies: Envoy to the Soviets (1992) focused on Davies’ diplomatic career. She is now investigating his equally controversial role in the Wilson administration. Forthcoming, a chapter on the history of Otterbein College in Cradles of Conscience: Ohio’s Liberal Arts Colleges (2003).

E-mail EMacLean@otterbein.edu

William J. Nancarrow received his MA in history from Northeastern University and is currently a Ph.D. candidate in History at Boston College. He is completing his dissertation "Vox Populi: Democracy and the Progressive Era Judiciary, 1890-1916," and teaches at Boston College, Newbury College and Curry College in Massachusetts.

E-mail nancarro@bc.edu

Alexander Pantsov received his Ph.D. in history in March 1983 from the Russian Academy of Sciences. He is Professor of History at Capital University where he has taught from 1999. He has written four books and numerous articles on Chinese and Russian Communism. His most recent book was The Bolsheviks and the Chinese Revolution 1919-1927 (University of Hawai'i Press, 2000).

E-mail apantsov@capital.edu

Daniella Sarnoff is Assistant Professor of History at Xavier University. She received her Ph.D. in history from Boston College in 2001. She is currently revising her dissertation, "In the Cervix of the Nation: Women in French Fascism, 1919-1939," for publication.

E-mail sarnoff@xu.edu

A. Martin Wainwright received his Ph.D. in British History and South Asia Studies from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1989. An associate professor of History at the University of Akron, he also directs the university's World Civilization program. He published Inheritance of Empire: Britain, India, and the Balance of Power in Asia, 1938-55 (Praeger, 1994) and is writing a book on the institutional reception of Indians in Britain during the late-nineteenth and early-twentieth centuries.

E-mail mwainwright@uakron.edu